FORM'HOUSE

The ideal space dedicated to training for workers

What challenge or problem are you addressing? What is the need for the project?

The project initially started from the observation that the offer in terms of long life learning in Picardy Wallonia (Belgium) is scattered and does not have a good readability among companies. This is because there is no dedicated and emblematic building allowing the entrepreneurs to understand the training offer, notably technical, but also to have a "point of contact" when it comes to training demand.

Objective of the project: What your project wants to achieve/change

The objective consisted in meeting the expectations and needs of the companies by organizing tailor-made training programs; it is therefore obvious that training could be increased and gathered within a main building.

Why do you need transnational cooperation?

The dynamics created must be amplified and professionalized. In this new project, training is positioned as a real catalyst to stimulate a region, as a major supporting factor for activity and employment. The aim now is to innovate while capitalizing on field experience.
Here is what we want to achieve: understanding the evolving needs of the area in terms of training, gathering the demand, but also allowing the companies to express what they need.
Those objectives will be carried out through the exchange of best practice between partners, the improvement of existing procedures or the creation of new tools.

What kind or partners are you looking for?

We look for active partners in the innovation and the training as well as in the construction of innovative buildings and at the top of the technologies. We look for partners stemming from European regions having no universities, competence centers and/or consisting of a majority of small and medium-sized enterprises (according to the socioeconomic atlas from Picardy Wallonia, 95 % of companies have less than 50 workers).
